

I want to join the thousands expressing dismay at the super bowl--not just the half time show, but the ads as well showed poor taste and disrespect to women--and people's intelligence.

As far as the halftime show, expecting us to believe that exposing a breast while singing about "have you naked" was just a wardrobe malfunction is more insulting to my intelligence than the actual act! If this is passed over with a minor fine, it is a gross miscarriage of justice.